From the Editor

Tax day has come and gone! I hope all of you met the deadline and had a hefty refund.

Two more West Coast Membership Dances have been added to the What's Ahead section below (March and April). There is still one more dance to be scheduled in Sebring. Please try to remember to check the What's Ahead section for conflicts when you are scheduling special dances. This is the most comprehensive list of what is going on in our area so let's try to be more cognizant of what and where dances are scheduled so that we not only minimize conflicts but we are knowledgeable when talking to prospective new dancers. I have an even more comprehensive list on my Master Calendar that I work from each week in preparing the DANCERgram if you ever need that much detail.

If you haven't made your hotel reservations for the Florida State Convention yet, I received word this past week that the Comfort Inn & Suites in north Lakeland has lowered their daily price for our dancers to $72.99 per night plus taxes. The Comfort Inn is located at 3520 N. Highway 98, which is immediately north of I-4 on the west side of the road near the McDonald's.

I've added a new vendor link this week. I received an email from a vendor in Las Vegas who carries a full line of clothes and accessories.

Please check out the details for the used square dance clothing sale at Buttons & Bows of Lakeland on May 12th during their regularly scheduled dance. Everything on the rack will be $1 per piece. All donations will benefit Buttons & Bows.

Many class graduations have already occurred; please remember the new dancers and encourage them to visit your dances and get some floor time to practice what they have learned. As I have previously mentioned, there are several clubs in the Tampa Bay area and Polk County dancing through the summer that alternate tips so that the new dancers will have a chance to dance. When they do visit your dances, please be sure that they are welcomed in to your squares and they aren't left alone to dance in a square with all new dancers. Repetition and practice is what they need now.

Health Updates

I haven't received any reports; I hope no news is good news!

MacDonald's Dance

As an additional fundraiser for the MacDonald's Parents Group, I came up with an idea I would like to ask for your help on.

I know that we are ALL watching our pennies these days..... but how many pennies could we collect as a group of square dancers from all over our immediate area or even other areas if they want to help.....????

There are several ads on TV right now about finding "your true north", which I interpreted after I saw several of the ads, to be a thought that someone was really passionate about and pursued that passion and had great results. Not necessarily all alone but with the help of others.

I think that helping the people in our MacDonald's Parents Group by collecting as many pennies as we can and turning those pennies into dollars will create more revenue for their organization for which we already participate with the MacDonald's Parent's Group dance.

I will be asking all the Presidents of the local clubs in our area to ask their members to participate in this fundraiser with us. I will provide the containers for each club president to put out at their dance and will be responsible for picking up the containers. I am only asking for help to collect the pennies and Yolanda and I will do the rest of the work, (putting out the jars, picking them up, and counting the money).....Won't you please consider helping with this worthwhile project????? I know as a well organized group we can have great results.....

I am also checking into starting some classes for handicapable dancers as soon as we can get it all worked out and need volunteers for that project as well. It just seems to go hand in hand with the MacDonald's Parents Group fundraiser.

I think it is a wonderful way for the square dancers to give back to our community by helping..... Thanks so much and please feel free to pass this information to any and everyone you know who might want to join in on the fundraising..... Flo and Yolanda

Can I count on my friends to help us out in this fundraiser??? We will also be selling raffle tickets for a cruise as soon as I get them.

Flo Byington & Yolanda Trainor, MacDonald Dance Coordinators

[NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: I think we can all help Flo and Yolanda with this project by simply putting out a jar with a sign at our dances to collect pennies. And, I think we can help out by getting the money back to them instead of Flo and Yolanda having to pick them up from us. Everyone can bring their "collections" to the VIP Dance and the President's Ball (I'm sure both Flo and Yolanda will be at those dances), and then bring the balance of your collections to the MacDonald Dance in November.

I think we need a catchy name for this "campaign" though – let's hear your ideas! "Pennies for _____".]

How did USDA Get its Start?

In November of 1978, the idea for a national dancer's association was presented to the California Square Dance Council. The intent was to bring together the various State Dancer Associations, Councils, Federations, etc. into one National organization to represent the dancers in the affairs of the activity. A questionnaire was sent to the various organizations with a very good response.

An organizing committee was formed at the 29th National Square Dance Convention® in Memphis with 12 states forming this body.

In November 1980, in Oklahoma City, the governing documents for this new organization were formulated. These documents were distributed for review in early 1981, so that the organization meeting and final adoption could create this new dancer organization. This meeting took place in Seattle during the 30th National Square Dance Convention®. At this time the name of UNITED SQUARE DANCERS OF AMERICA (USDA) was chosen as the official name. The 1st Annual meeting was history. There were 22 states representing 110,000 dancers. Goals were established and they are still in force today. Officers were elected at this meeting.

In the first winter meeting, the medical/liability insurance program was presented and has been covering us ever since. Shortly thereafter enough state organizations joined to make USDA the largest dancer organization in the world.

Annual meetings were originally held on Friday afternoon during the National Square Dance Convention®, but were later changed to Wednesday afternoon before the National Convention.

USDA, the largest square dance organization in the world, was organized by dancers, for dancers, and is operated by dancers. For more information, please visit their website www.usda.org.

She's square with life

The Boston Globe

Hospice brings partners for resident's last dance

Marilyn Coyne, 82, hoofed yesterday with Tom Barry at Meadow View in North Reading. (Joanne Rathe/Globe Staff)

By Steven Rosenberg

Globe Staff / March 20, 2009

NORTH READING - Marilyn Coyne survived the Depression with little food and no heat in her parents' flat in Portland, Maine. She married and sent four kids to college. She saw her husband and one of their children die. And, in November, after three years of fighting breast cancer, she was told by a doctor that she had months to live.

In hospice care and losing weight in recent weeks as the cancer crept through her body, she confided to a hospice volunteer that she had a last wish, something that recalled summer nights of her childhood and joy with her husband. She wanted a final square dance.

Yesterday, her wish came true. Coyne donned a floral skirt, a crimson petticoat, and a red peasant shirt, and walked to the center of a nursing room social hall, where nine professional square-dancers, dressed in cowboy shirts and calico, waited for her.

It had been a decade since she last clasped hands with a partner, but as music played, the elfin Coyne deftly followed the dance caller's instructions of allemande left, promenade, and do-si-do. After five minutes of swinging her partner, and singing along with "She'll Be Coming 'Round the Mountain," Coyne let her thin, 82-year-old frame fall into a padded wooden chair and took a deep breath.

"That," she sighed, "was wonderful."

It may have been bittersweet, this scene, but it befitted the decades that led to it. For much of her life, Coyne had sought refuge on the square-dance floor. She learned the art as a child growing up on Portland's mostly-Irish Munjoy Hill, where she received the nickname Minty. The name stuck for life (she never liked Marilyn, she says) and still hints of a youth long past.

"I'm Minty McNeill Coyne, the girl who could steal any heart, anywhere, any time," she says.

As a teenager, she met Patrick Coyne. The two went to separate Catholic high schools in the city, but they became fast friends, brought together by poverty and hardship and, ultimately, by square-dancing. After their first square dance together, they realized there was more than friendship between them. "I just liked him from the very start. We were good friends and got along very well," she said. They married in 1947.

In Portland, Patrick worked as a foreman for the city water district, and Minty took a clerk job at a credit union. The couple had four children. Minty says she lived a "simple life," working, taking care of her children, and putting her passion into baking apple pies and attending weekend square dances. There, she found escape among people who, like her, reveled in music, dance, and small talk.

"I'd feel free when I danced, and it's nice if you have a husband who likes it. I have some friends and their husbands would never do anything like that," she said.

All of her children would graduate from college, fulfilling her dream for them. "I never could go. I wanted them to go so bad," said Minty, who is 4 feet, 10 inches tall, has sharp blue eyes, and short silver hair.

One son became a doctor, a daughter became a lawyer, another son went into real estate, and a third son, Danny, was an assistant secretary of state in Maine. At a family picnic in 1991, when Danny Coyne was 40, Minty watched as her son collapsed during a basketball game and died.

"I screamed 'Danny's dead, Danny's dead' over and over, and cried and cried," she said, adding that there is no such thing as closure when one loses a child.

Tired of Maine's frigid winters, the couple moved to Gulfport, Fla., in 1995, determined to square-dance as much as they could. She sewed all of her dresses and shirts. She bought her petticoats and shoes.

Ten years into their retirement, Patrick died, and Minty moved north to be closer to her daughter, Carol. She settled into an assisted-living facility in Tewksbury and soon after, felt pain around her breast. After tests, she was told she had breast cancer and had a breast removed.

The cancer never went away.

After Coyne mentioned her desire for one last square dance, Camryn Walsh, of Care Alternatives Hospice, decided to bring the dance to Minty. Walsh arranged to bring the Riverside Squares, a Danvers square-dancing group, to Minty's floor at the Meadow View Care and Rehabilitation Center in North Reading.

"What we really try to provide is comfort and dignity when patients and families are faced with incurable disease," said Walsh.

For an hour yesterday, the music played and dancers danced while a small crowd of nursing home residents, and Minty's nurses and social workers, hooted and hollered in appreciation. Then the dancers packed up and were gone, and Minty sat in the dining room, talking about everything from the economy and technology to nature. She's waiting for a really warm day so she can take a walk outside. "I don't like sitting around," she said.

She does not fear death or dwell on the idea of not being around much longer. "I know I'm going to die one day but it doesn't bother me. I don't think about dying," she said. "I believe in afterlife. I assume there's a heaven. . . . I'll let you know if I get there."

"Retired" Means Time to Take Care of Everything

It didn't seem like that big a job.

The goal was to simply cut some scrap lumber into firewood-sized pieces. Ordinarily, I would have busted through it and gotten onto the next job.

But time is no longer the driving force. I am retired.

That is why the simple job took a day and didn't get done.

First there was the need for a sawbuck, a simple apparatus to cradle wood for cutting. Had time been an issue, I wouldn't have bothered.

Sawbucks were once common. The X-shaped ends are even responsible for the "sawbuck" nickname given to the $10 bill. To make one sturdy enough to last a few years involves little more than a couple of lap joints where the X's cross and stringers to connect the two ends.

But the bracket on the circular saw, which adjusts the saw for shallow cuts, has been bent for a couple of years. That might as well be fixed.

And the chain saw needed to be sharpened. There's no time like the present.

That's the way things are going lately. I'm starting to understand the concept of "puttering around." But puttering can be constructive. Things are slowly getting done.

A warped cabinet door in the kitchen has been replaced; a faulty light in the laundry room has been repaired, and a variety of minor jobs eliminated.

A year ago, when the electrical wire to the water heater in the laundry room malfunctioned, I hastily replaced it with an under-sized extension cord. It may have been a fire hazard, but it worked.

That water heater has now been rewired.

The big jobs still loom. There is still cracked plaster in the family room, compliments of 2004's Hurricane Charley. Repairing that will require painting, which can lead to all kinds of other problems. There is no way you can get away with completely cleaning and painting only one room.

When I was working full-time there never seemed to be enough time to take care of everything. Now that I'm retired, there never seems to be enough time to take care of everything. I can't figure out how there was ever enough time for a full-time job and household maintenance.

The difference is that I'll have more time tomorrow. I think I'll use that time to cut some scrap lumber into firewood. That should be a simple job.
